

HEMEDICUS Accreditation Renewed

Parsippany, NJ – April 10, 2019 – Frontline Medical Communications is pleased to announce Hemedicus, an accredited continuing medical education provider, has successfully completed the Accreditation Council™ for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) reaccreditation process.

Upon announcing the achievement, Managing Director, MDedge™ Hematology & Oncology, Frank Iorio, commented, “this renewed accreditation clearly demonstrates the leadership of the Hemedicus staff in delivering high-quality CME programs that meet rigorous standards for educational excellence and independence.”

Hemedicus, an independent ACCME accredited continuing medical education company, aims to improve physician competence and enhance physician performance in practice by offering accredited educational programs in the fields of hematology, oncology, and immunology. Hemedicus produces live events, monographs, webcasts, podcasts, slide kits, and other print and digital educational materials.

Participation in accredited CME helps physicians meet requirements for maintenance of licensure and certification, credentialing, membership in professional societies, and other professional privileges. By availing themselves of accredited CME, physicians can count on a learning environment free bias and can stay current on best practices, enabling them to deliver evidenced-based, effective patient care.
